

Only those investors with patience and clear thinking will show a profit in the long term. This may be cold comfort to those who have already suffered painful losses as a result of the worst economic crash in post-war history, but in truth the warning signs had long been there for all to see.

→ To be adequately prepared for the future, we need to understand what made it possible for the economic downturn to come about. It was a crisis set in motion by our financial forefathers and nurtured by their descendants, who not only flouted the rules, but whose behaviour can only be described as criminal. Now, a global cleanup is underway, and the new controlled market promises fresh opportunities based on a more
