

There was a time when it was thought that the market economy could guarantee almost everyone a relative degree of affluence. This has changed since the function of free market economy has been increasingly superseded by capitalism. A bottom-up redistribution of wealth on a colossal scale has started to take place: the pyramid game. It consists of tax evasion by the rich and an ever-increasing tax burden on the least well-off which has undermined social equality. Now the first warning signals are emerging from the global markets.
